A BIOGRAPHY OF THE SIGNERS
TO THE
Declaration of Independence,
ACCOMPANIED WITH PLATES:

To which will be annexed a history of the proceedings of congress during the passage of the law, and the Declaration itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures.

By PAUL ALLEN, Esq.

TO THE PUBLIC.
It seems a little surprising that amongst so many subjects as have been presented for American Biography, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence have been overlooked or disregarded. The eyes of thousands have dwelt with rapture upon the document that announced to the world that "these United Colonies were, and of right ought to be, free, sovereign, and independent states;" while we are better acquainted with the handwriting than with the characters of many of those illustrious men who have added their signatures to that instrument. The founders of the only remaining republic on the globe, have, with a few splendid exceptions, gone to their graves, and it behoves a generous posterity, sensible of their obligations, to preserve their fame. The longer we neglect the payment of so sacred a debt, the more difficult does the payment become.—Traits of individual character are fugitive and evanescent; and if they are not snatched by death, they are lost; they stand in need of no pedigree; and we earnestly solicit from the surviving relations and friends of those revolutionary patriots all the information that will tend to a development of character. It is the creature of circumstance, and wish to show the progress of those patriots from their first resistance of colonial aggression, until they stood forth the undaunted champions of their country's independence. All this can only be done by a familiar acquaintance with the lives of these men, and whoever of the surviving sons or relatives will furnish facts and circumstances in their possession to unfold illustrate their characters, shall be entitled to a copy of the work as a recompence. It is contemplated, wherever it is practicable, further to embellish the medical work, with correct likenesses of the eminent artists in the country. For purpose we again solicit the assistance of their surviving relatives and friends. If any will transmit to the publisher any engraving or portrait from which a copy may be made, the original shall be faithfully retained, and shall likewise be remunerated for the copy of the work. In the first number is proposed to give an account of the Declaration of Independence, from the first that was made on the floor of Congress until its final passage into a law, a embracing much curious and secret history; finally, we promise to add to our number the Declaration of Independence itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures. We have now compensated the objects of our present undertaking, and we hope that it will be unnecessary to mention that no exertions on our part will be spared.

public are now in possession of our which does indeed seem to be done, by the avidity so recently displayed in the possession of the Declaration of Independence, since it is of very little importance to become acquainted with a man's history without a previous knowledge of the same. The secret history of our Declaration of Independence, the lives of those who affixed their signatures to that instrument, accompanied by their likenesses, and the Declaration itself with fac-simile signatures, will bring into one view the prominent facts of that crisis.

Romulus Riggs's EXCHANGE BANKING HOUSE, AND

BROKER'S OFFICE,

Bridge-street, Georgetown.

THIS is intended as a permanent establishment, and the community will find it one of the greatest conveniences in the United States, and of great public utility. At this house the fair exchange on the different bank notes from every part of the union can at all times be had: It is to be hoped that, by the operations of this office, the community will get rid of ghost of Shooks, Shavers, Secret and Running Brokers, who infest the District, and frequently proclaiming the failure of country solvent banks, for the express purpose of purchasing the notes of such institutions at great discounts. Business under the following heads will be transacted. This establishment possesses funds to negotiate for any amount, and all business done for cash.

1st. All bank checks, bills at sight, post notes due, and bank notes from all parts of the United States, bought and sold.

2d. All notes, bills of exchange, dividends and interests, collected and remitted according to orders.

3d. The notes of the United States' bank and all of its branches received at par.

4th. Strangers, citizens, and others, may deposit current money for safe keeping—and if left for thirty days, or longer, will receive at the rate of six per cent. per annum for the same.

5th. All business in the line of a money broker promptly attended to for a small commission.

6th. All southern and western traders, bringing to the district large sums of south and western bank notes, can deposit for safe keeping, and draw for the same as may suit their convenience.

7th. Prompt attention paid to the orders of all respectable brokers and exchange offices throughout the United States—who will please to favor me occasionally with their rates of exchange on bank notes and bills.

*From the National Intelligencer.
OF THE NORTH OF EUROPE.*
Interesting extract from a letter addressed by a gentleman on board of the United States' frigate Guerriere, then in the North of Europe, to his friend, a member of Congress.

United States frigate Guerriere, off Cape Trafalgar, Nov. 5, 1818.

My two last letters contained some general remarks on Petersburg—in this, I will speak of some of its monuments and edifices. The equestrian statue of Peter the Great, is already familiar to you, since no traveller has omitted a description of it. But, their accounts have bordered on hyperbole, insomuch that its majesty fell far short of my expectations. The next object in order of magnificence, may be mentioned the palaces of the Imperial family, of which, there are seven or eight in the city and environs. Excepting the one built by Peter the Great, when he commenced the foundation of Petersburg, and which contains very few rooms, the number of apartments in each averages between two and three hundred. Three or four of the palaces are much more splendid than any I saw in Italy. In the hermitage a sort of appendage to the winter or court place, to which the Imperial family retreat from court, bustle and parade, I counted between twenty and thirty apartments of paintings by the first artists of Europe. Besides these, there are statues, mineralogical cabinets, antiquities, &c. &c. together with nearly all the presents in jewellery and trinkets from the different European and Asiatic sovereigns to the different Russian monarchs for more than a century. A description of them would fill a large volume. One, however, I think worthy of notice, not more from its ridiculous extravagance, than for its striking display of the genius of the donor. It is a gold Peacock, Fowl, Frog and Grasshopper, as large as life, and so connected with machinery as to exhibit the gestures of those animals on ordinary occasions.

The churches next in splendor, and first to one who views the city from a distance, are about forty-five in number. Their towering domes and lofty spires overlooking all other edifices, are covered with plates of copper overlaid with ducat gold, their interior is equally rich and splendid. In the church of St. Alexander Newsky, the protecting saint of the empire, are deposited his relics; over which has been erected a shrine containing 3600 lbs. weight of silver. And the Casan church, built by the present emperor, and intended as a rival of St. Peters, of Rome, is furnished still more expensively. In these two are the remains of Suvaroff and Kutusoff, over which lighted tapers are perpetually burning. From the walls of the churches are suspended the standards taken from France, Turkey and Persia, by the Russian army, and the keys of many fortresses and cities.

The hospitals, custom house, admiralty and arsenal, are well worth a particular description, as are also the museum, theatres, academies of arts and sciences, colleges &c. for their magnificence corresponds with that of the other objects I have mentioned. But I have only room here for a short description of the emperor's library. Catherine commenced this in '95. Her armies in Poland captured the city of Varsavia, in which was a library belonging to the Republic, of 262,640 volumes, and 24,573 maps and stamps or prints. The empress ordered them to be transported to Petersburg, and they are now deposited in an immense building erected for the purpose by Alexander. The books are classed according as they relate—1st. to the arts; 2dly to science, and 3dly philology or belles lettres, and each class is subdivided into orders, &c. by which, there is no need of referring to the general catalogue when any particular book is wanted. In 1805 the library of a Mr. Daubroussy was added, which for manuscripts ancient and rare, is perhaps unparalleled in Europe. Many of them are twelve or thirteen centuries old, and among modern ones, are some original letters of Phillip and Isabella of Spain, upon the discovery of America. I do not despair of obtaining copies of these for some of our historical societies. They were found in the Bastille in France, with the letters of a great many other monarchs to the Kings of France. Mr. D. being ambassador to France at that time, made a vast collection of them from the rabble who took the Bastille. The library is conducted by a director general, seven librarians, and seven adjuncts, or guardian of manuscripts and one assistant. By an order of the emperor a copy of every book published in the empire is deposited here. In the report of 1817, there were besides duplicates of books, and besides pamphlets, 300,000 volumes, and 13,000 manuscripts.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

St. Stephens, (A. T.) Jan. 11.

"Penscola remains in the possession of the American garrison; would to God it could become American property. It is a beautiful site for a large commercial town, possessing among advantages one among the first bays and harbors on the whole American sea coast: and from the continual fine sea breezes, and an abundance of the very best of spring water, I have no doubt would with a tolerable police, be one of the healthiest situations in the southern country; and as the bay receives all the waters of the Escambia, Conasuck, Murder Creek, Pine Barren, &c. &c.; so were the town American, property, would receive the produce of all the fertile lands on those streams."

[Charleston Courier.]

Halifax Feb. 17.

The commercial Treaty, between Great Britain and the United States, concluded at London on the 20th October, and ratified at Washington on the 30th ult. by President Monroe, was received here on Thursday last from Boston, and will be found in the last page of our paper.—The most important article of it, is that which relates to the Fisheries: Americans are now permitted to catch Fish on the Coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador, and the shores of the Magdalen Islands, &c. to cure them in the unsettled Bays or Harbors on the said Coasts; and to enter any of the British Ports in North America for supplies of Wood and Water, or for the purpose of repairing damages sustained by their vessels. This is a concession, on our part which we much regret should ever have been made—it will be attended with very great advantages to the United States; and, we fear, will prove extremely injurious to the interest of this part of the British Empire. Our harbours will now become the resort of American vessels (for excuses to enter them can never be wanting); smuggling will be carried on to any extent with the utmost facility; and the Fishermen, and other Settlers, supplied with whatever articles of provision, &c. they may require, without sending to the Halifax market for them.

We feel much pleasure in observing, however, that no permission is given, by the treaty, to Americans to trade with our W. I. Islands. This is a circumstance highly important to Nova-Scotia; and will, we hope, be attended with very great advantages to the United States; and, we fear, will prove extremely injurious to the interest of this part of the British Empire. Our harbours will now become the resort of American vessels (for excuses to enter them can never be wanting); smuggling will be carried on to any extent with the utmost facility; and the Fishermen, and other Settlers, supplied with whatever articles of provision, &c. they may require, without sending to the Halifax market for them.

Liming Seed Wheat.

A respectable correspondent informs us, that unslacked lime has been found to answer an excellent purpose, in preparing wheat for seed. This gent'len man states that he put about four or five pounds of quick lime into a sufficient quantity of water to soak one bushel of wheat, which he sowed the last spring; then added the wheat, and permitted it to remain about twelve hours.

The lime by slackening raised the temperature of the water to blood heat, and the wheat became soft and apparently par boiled. On sowing it, however, it began to sprout much sooner than usual, flourished remarkably, and produced an excellent crop, entirely free from any appearance of smut.—The above is probably the least expensive, and most efficacious mode of preparing wheat for seed, that has yet been discovered.

Milton Intel.

We feel much pleasure in observing, however, that no permission is given, by the treaty, to Americans to trade with our W. I. Islands. This is a circumstance highly important to Nova-Scotia; and will, we hope, be attended with very great advantages to the United States; and, we fear, will prove extremely injurious to the interest of this part of the British Empire. Our harbours will now become the resort of American vessels (for excuses to enter them can never be wanting); smuggling will be carried on to any extent with the utmost facility; and the Fishermen, and other Settlers, supplied with whatever articles of provision, &c. they may require, without sending to the Halifax market for them.

To FARMERS.

The practice of sowing wheat on a clover sod, with one ploughing has been much recommended both in England and the U. States as being attended with complete success in raising good crops, and also in improving the lands, but some farmers in trying the experiment, have failed altogether by ploughing too shallow, by which the grass and weeds ahead choke up the wheat.

Let not this be a discouragement; but rather try it again in a proper manner. Turn down the sod, whether it be clover, timothy, or herd grass, with a good plough and a strong team, so deep as completely to prevent their growing to the injury of the crop. The field may be broken up in the eighth month, the manure spread on immediately, and well harrowed in—and then in proper season cross ploughed lightly, and sown about a bushel to the

AN ACT
For the Inspection of Shingles and Plastering Laths, in the town of Alexandria.

Sec. 1. And be it enacted, That all juniper or green cypress rough shaved shingles bro't to the town of Alexandria for sale, shall not be less than 21 inches long, 34 inches wide, clear of sap, and 5-8ths of an inch thick; and all juniper or green cypress smooth shaved shingles, shall be of the same length and width as the rough shaved, and not less than 4-8ths of an inch thick, free from rot, splits, knot holes and bad twist; and all other descriptions of shingles shall be free from rot, knot holes, splits and bad twist.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the inspector to pass all shingles, not in bundles, through his own hands, and reject as unmerchantable such as shall not agree with the foregoing description; He shall break open and inspect every twentieth bundle of shingles, or more, if necessary, to be selected from any part of the cargo, by which inspection he shall average the quality of bundle shingles, and shall mark with red chalk, in large figures, on one side of each bundle, the number contained in said bundle.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That all laths for plastering shall be put up in bundles of one hundred each, and be well tied near to both ends of the bundle, and be of the following dimensions: viz. not less than 4 feet long, 3-16ths of an inch in thickness, 1 inch in width; and they shall be sound and straight.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the inspector to inspect and count every fortieth bundle, or more if necessary, to be selected from any parts of the cargo, by which inspection and count he shall average the cargo.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the inspectors and measurers of lumber shall also be inspectors of shingles and plastering laths, with the privilege of appointing one or more deputies to assist, if occasion should require; and the said inspectors shall be entitled to receive, as a compensation for inspecting and counting all shingles, the sum of twenty cents per thousand, and for all plastering laths, the sum of six cents per thousand; and two-thirds to be paid by the seller, and one-third by the buyer.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That any person or persons buying or selling shingles or plastering laths, contrary to the provisions of this act, shall each forfeit and pay, for every offence, the sum of fifty cents for each thousand shingles, and twenty cents for each thousand laths, to be recovered as other fines and penalties are in similar cases; one half of the said fines and penalties to be for the use of the corporation, and the other half to the informer.

Sec. 7. This act shall commence and be in force from and after the passing thereof.

Passed in council this 27th day of February, 1819.

J. H. HOOD, Pres. of the Com. Com.

Approved 4th of March, 1819.
